Notice Period

Employees are required to provide notice to the Organization if they chose to terminate their employment with IDEaS.

In the case of voluntary resignation, employees are required to serve a notice period of 60 days from the date of the employee tendering in his/her notice of resignation.

The following clauses apply for the treatment of the notice period -

- The employee mandatorily needs to serve 30 calendar days of notice period.
- For the subsequent 30 days, the employee has an option to buy out the notice period.
- Employee can avail only the leave that gets accrued during the notice period per month.
- Employee is not eligible to avail any additional privilege leave which has been carried forward from the previous year.

For e.g.

- a) During the notice period employee can accrue and avail 2 leaves per month as per the normal leave accrual process.
- b) If the employee serves the entire stipulated notice period of 60 days than he/she is eligible to avail 2 days leave in the first month and another 2 days in the subsequent month of the notice period.
- c) The opening balance of the leaves that are accrued by employees before the commencement of the notice period cannot be availed during the notice period.

The notice period for those still in their probation period is 30 days from the date of the employee tendering his notice.

It is expected that employees work with equal professionalism and commitment while serving the notice period and must adhere to all the organizational norms. If it is observed that an employee who has given notice is not performing up to the organization's expected performance / behavior standards, then disciplinary action including and leading up to termination will be initiated. In such cases, the relieving letter / experience letter will mention the reason(s) for termination.

Leave Encashment would be calculated as follows:

- Leave Encashment = Basic Monthly Salary * No of Leaves.

Notice period recovery would be calculated as follows:

- Notice Period Recovery = (Annual Basic Salary / 12) * No of calendar days of the shortfall in the notice period

Full and Final Settlement

- The full & final settlement will be closed within 7 calendar days after the last working day and provided there are no dues from the employee's side.
- The salary of the employee from the month in which the information on separation is received is released as per the normal payroll cycle provided the employee is serving the entire notice period of 60 days. (Not applicable for transfer cases). In these cases, the second month's salary is put on hold and is paid out along with the full & final settlement.
- In case the employee is serving a 30 days' notice period, then the monthly salary is paid out along with the full & final settlement.
- Leave encashment is done on the basis of accumulated and actual accrued leaves as on the last working date on a pro-rata basis for that calendar year.
- The relieving letter will be sent across by the HR representative to the employee's communication address within 7 working days from the completion of the full and final settlement.
- In case there is a recovery, then the recovery amount is communicated to the employee on or before his/her last working day.
